VALUE IN ALLYSHIP

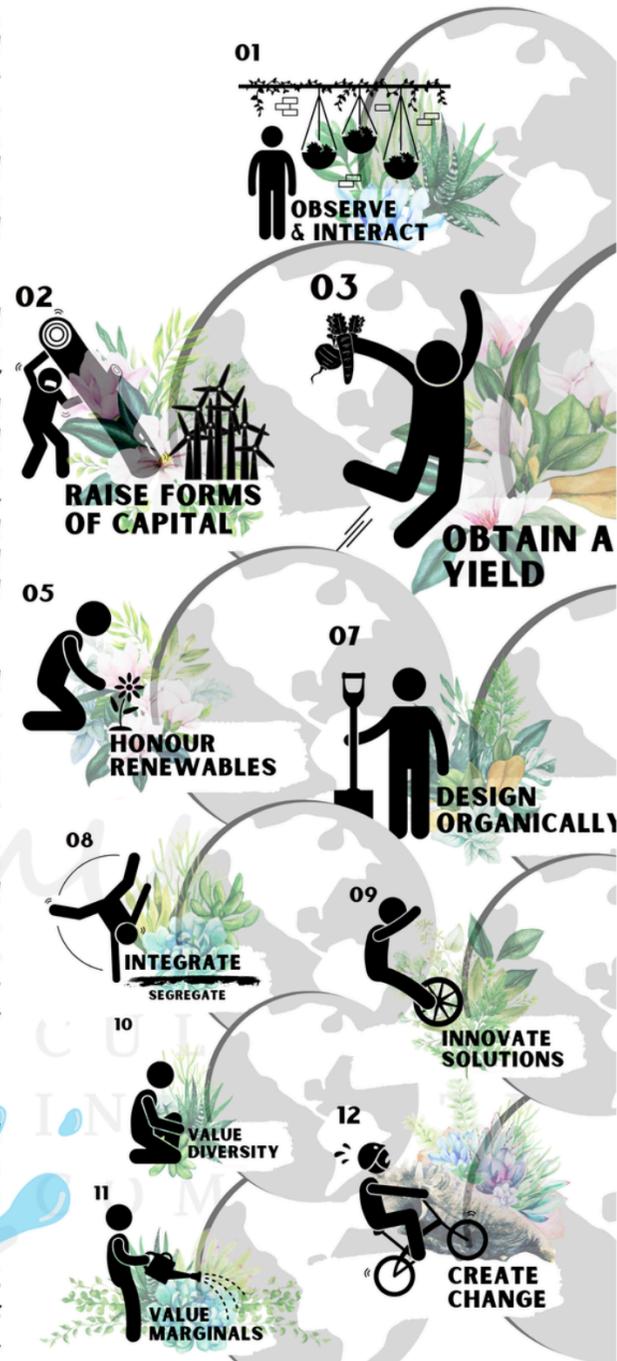

Partnering with QCIC means investing in equitable inclusion, youth leadership, and culturally grounded innovation that extends beyond a single event. Our Peace Festival weaves together equity in education, dignity in housing, food sovereignty, and experiential learning as interconnected pathways toward collective repair.

By addressing anti-Black racism and centering Black and Indigenous leadership, we use a "zoom in, zoom out" approach that affirms Every Child Matters while building shared responsibility across communities. Allies don't simply fund programming, they participate in shaping a future grounded in relationship, justice, and shared stewardship of land, culture, and community.

Grounded in permaculture ethics and principles, our partnerships invite collaborators to observe and interact, raise diverse forms of capital, obtain meaningful yield, and honour renewable systems of care. We design organically, integrate rather than segregate, value diversity and marginal voices, and embrace change as a pathway to regeneration. In this way, allyship becomes a living practice, one that nurtures people, land, and possibility simultaneously.

We invite you to explore the sponsorship perks on the next page. If financial contributions are not possible, we're open to the many creative ways in which you can step in, through in-kind support, expertise, space, materials, storytelling, youth mentorship, volunteer leadership, or collaborative programming. Every form of participation matters, and every ally helps shape the future we are building together.
